WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

I WAS in a home the other evening where the whole family go about on tip-toes with their fingers on their lips, making any necessary remarks in awesome whispers, from six to seven.

Why all this hush and mystery?
Why, because the baby goes to sleep at that hour, of course.
I was in another home yesterday where the two big brothers were playing tennis under the bedroom window and the little sister was practicing her singles in the parlor and big sister was entertaining a group of swains on the front veranda, while the mother was putting the baby to bed.

As she closed the baby's door and came sniffling down the stairs to me, a baby from big sister was greeted by an uproarious burst of laughter from the swains, big brother started a new set with the loud voiced and triumphant announcement "Three-ohs," and little sister reached the loud pedal part of her exercise.

"You don't mean to say that baby will go to sleep in all this racket?" I demanded in amazement.
"Why, certainly," answered the little mother, serenely, "he will be asleep in three minutes—the precious."

"How can he?"
"Why, just because he always has. He couldn't, of course, if he were trained to expect absolute quiet, but he hasn't been, so he can go to sleep under pretty nearly any conditions, and I hope he will always be able to."

Which of those two mothers do you think was the kindest and wisest?

Of course, I scarcely need to tell you what I think.
The man or woman who is the least a slave to conditions and circumstances of this sort is apt to be the most comfortable and the most efficacious in this world.

"I simply cannot sleep well in my bed but my own," I heard some one say the other day.

If I felt that way it seems to me I'd spend the family to the extent of sleeping a night or two in every bed in the house until I had freed myself from that dependence upon condition.

An author announces with pride that he cannot do good work unless he is seated at a desk near a certain window that looks out upon a favorite vista.

I don't call that matter for pride. I call it weak-minded slavery to circumstance. I think that man ought to have his desk moved into another room and break those chains, and make his power to work independent of conditions.

Do you remember—in the Hoadler Schoolboy, I think it was—the story of the boy who could not write unless he twisted a certain button on his coat, and how some of his enemies managed to cut this button off just before the examination day and the boy failed utterly because he missed the button?

That sounds rather absurd, doesn't it? And yet a lot of us have felish buttons of one sort or another upon whose presence we let our comfort and facility depend.

That first baby, for instance, when he grows up will have the foolish of an inability to go to sleep unless there is absolute quiet.
Isn't it better when we find we have gotten into such ways, to cut off the button ourselves, and learn to write without it, rather than to risk being utterly upset if it is unexpectedly cut off by circumstances?

WORKING FOR LOVE, AND LOVING TO WORK.

By MARY HENRIETTA
Working for the sake of the family is stimulating to a degree. Even though the work is distasteful, it has results, and the results are of importance. A man or woman will work to the point
of exhaustion with no thought
of giving up, if there is some
dear one depending upon the efforts.

Such work is a
grind, often enough, but we
see people dog-
gedly plodding
about at the dis-
agreeable task,
trying to hold to strength and purpose till the day of rest, which enables them to once more shoulder the burden and go forward bravely.

Such work is praiseworthy. Such people are more martyrs than they dream—though they are prone to place the crown upon their heads. They don't hate with a sense of campaign self-sacrifice, but the real martyrdom lies in the thought that they are making a sacrifice.

Now of us get what we really desire of life. We may have to wash dishes when we would prefer to write sonnets—and we may have to write sonnets when we would gladly be washing dishes—with the chance that we would do the last named work the best.

We see men plodding away at tasks far below their mental ability because they must earn sufficient wages for the needs of the family. We see women behind counters who would thrive in the open and who droop in the close confinement of the shop girls' daily round. We see round pegs in square holes and square pegs in round holes wherever we look.

It is a great pity that there should not be a bureau for the adjustment of these conditions, but since that is an Utopian dream, let us each try to improve conditions by trying to take an interest in the work we have to do, no matter how much we dislike it.

If we will but put a little heart into it we will find some point of interest. If it is no more than to discover a method of scrubbing corners really clean instead of scrubbing corners a chunk of dirt into it and wetting it down to the floor. A certain artistic satisfaction on dustless corners will help one to do something better, and if there is no hope of a position higher up it will at least put an intellectual interest into the more scrubbing of floors.

There is something interesting in any kind of work. Look for that interest, for it is the very salt of the working man or woman's life.

The boy who comes home full of stories of the new place when he has found the long-sought "job" should be encouraged to talk of his work. Listen with interest even though you feel bored. It is all there is in life for him just now. It is the round of the ladder on which he hopes to climb the ladder from it you will but take an interest. So with the girl who one barks on a business career. Listen and try to help with the kind word, which bears no resemblance to the overvaluing preaching that some persons think it is their duty and prerogative to deliver in season and out of season. Don't encourage carping criticism and fault-finding. Discourage it as quickly as possible, but stimulate the interest. Put heart into whatever you do till the drudgery is pleasure, when each labors "for the joy of working," as well as for the money the needs for daily living.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

WHY PUNISH THE CHILDREN?
The other day I saw a poor little kiddle, the daughter of a foolish mother, in much misery.

It was a warm day.
The little girl's hair was crimped by light braiding and there were big white bows. She was down up in silk and lace. Upon her head was a heavy, overturned hat, and dainty white slippers were upon her feet.

And this for a play costume!
A few paces down the street I saw another little one, the daughter of a sensible mother, who was having an excellent time at play.

Her hair had been loosely braided.
She wore a plain, serviceable gingham froek, a light straw hat and tan sand-dals.

The poor little dressed up thing with her expensive frock and val insertion and must not get dirty slippers was being sacrificed on the altar of some mother's silly vanity.

Did you ever note the wistful look on the face of one of those bedizened males as it watched other children at play?

The other youngsters in their plain clothes are having a good time, and the dazed up kid looks on and yearns to join the happy group. She is debarred by fear that she may soil her clothes.

The suffering of the child is worse
when he happens to be a boy.
Not long ago I witnessed a revolt by a youngster with red blood in his veins.

His fond and foolish mother had dressed the young hopeful in immen-sely "little Lord Fauntleroy" fashion.
She sent him out to play and doubtless had given him many warnings about soiling his clothes.

The little fellow, every inch a boy, went around the square and as soon as he was out of the range of his mother's eyes went on a little rampage. In a few minutes he was a sight to behold, but he was having the time of his life.

Could you blame the little rebel?
Sensible mothers will not be very particular about the clothes of their children in vacation and during hot weather.

They will save themselves trouble and worry and expense—and the children much suffering—by dressing the youngsters plainly, and simply and turning them loose.

What have the children done that they should be punished with the curse of fine clothes?

When the proper time comes in their lives they will take to frills and fur-bells without suggestion.

Why punish them now?

DAILY DIET HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist.

BEANS FOR BRAIN AND BRAWN.

Beans are a "heavy" food, not easy of digestion, but easier than the average mixed meal, as anyone can easily determine by living on beans exclusively for a few days. As a source of protein the bean is superior to meat, although as an exclusive diet it contains twice as much protein as is necessary, and tends to rheumatism. No food harmonizes better with beans than brown bread. Beans induce auto-intoxication much less than bread, or even potatoes, as is indicated by the fact that beans do not readily decay, even when cooked. It is a good brain as well as a good brawn food, as the result of its general use in Boston indicates.

But pie or fruit or fish do not harmonize with beans. With cabbage, salad or apples for breakfast, beans only for dinner and baked potatoes or rice only for supper a laboring man could work best and maintain his best degree of health, and the "high cost of living" would have little interest for him. Meat would never be necessary. It is much better to balance such a diet by the day than by the meal, getting the benefit of the monodiet.

A pleasant variety in sandwiches is made by grinding either figs or dates through the fine cutter of the meat grinder and mixing with butter so as to spread easily on thin slices of bread. Whole wheat or graham bread lend themselves to the flavor of such fruit butters. Make only sufficient for one meal, as it does not improve in flavor after standing a few hours.

For breakfast, an egg beaten up in milk with a little sugar and a grating of nutmeg will often make a full meal for a variable appetite. This may be varied by using a syrup made of chocolate and sugar with the egg and milk. A slice of white bread eaten with a glassful of other mixture will make a nourishing breakfast.

Fruit should appear freely during the hot weather. Apples are beginning to appear in the market at reasonable prices. A fresh hot sauce is often a welcome breakfast dish with breakfast.

Bacon should be used at this season in preference to much fresh meat—indeed the less fresh meat used the better for health and for the housekeeper's money.

Dishes that have been crushed with sugar may be beaten with the stiffly beaten whites of eggs to make a delightful and inexpensive dish. If two tablespoonsful of cream are added to the whites of two eggs and a quart of raspberries crushed and sweetened, there will be few that can detect the difference between them and a whipped cream mixture. This may be packed in a mould for an hour and will make a delightful dessert for either dinner or luncheon.

Do not fry cakes or make waffles while the weather remains warm.
These should be saved for winter dainties. It is much more difficult to provide winter menus than summer, and if all the pleasant winter dishes are made common during the summer you will find it hard to supply their places.

CASHIER KILLED; GIRL SOUGHT.

Arkansas Bank Officer Slain Mysteriously in Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 9.—Edwin Boysen, cashier of the Bank of Wheeley, Ark., was either killed by Miss Eva Goldberg or shot himself accidentally in the Goldberg apartments here. The young woman and her mother were examined by the police.
They both asserted that the shooting was accidental, the weapon being in Miss Goldberg's hands when it was discharged and she being engaged in a playful scuffle with Boysen.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict that the death was occasioned by Miss Goldberg or Boysen accidentally. In either case. Later, Attorney General Bates swore out a warrant for the young woman's arrest and officers are seeking her now. Boysen occupied a room in the Goldberg flat.

Constable Arrests Rockefeller for Driving Auto Too Fast.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 9.—Constable Billey of South Euclid arrested John D. Rockefeller on a charge of speeding in a motor car. Mr. Rockefeller will appear this afternoon before Justice Dean of South Euclid to answer to the charge.

The offense occurred last Thursday but the constable did not learn until after much search who owned the car that had gone faster than the 20-miles an hour that the village law permits. Mr. Rockefeller accepted service and said he was not aware he had exceeded the speed limit.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 9.—A drastic anti-lobbying bill was passed by the lower house of the Georgia assembly by a vote of 118 to 3. Its passage is assured in the senate. The bill requires that "any one representing a person, firm or corporation for or against legislation" must register his name and that of his employer and designate the bill he is interested in. Violation is made a felony.

Things You Need Now-- Things to Save Money On

FORM the habit of making all your cash purchases at the Big Cash Store because of the economies of our cash buying and cash selling methods. It's the little savings at all times of the year that amount to big sums that really makes for economical shopping.

Rather buy where you know that there are small savings and great Cash values every day in the year than to buy for high prices at one time and buy unsalable bargains at another time.

This store sets but one price on its merchandise and that price is the lowest we will make at that time. Late season often finds us with more goods than we should have, and on such the prices are reduced. They are not, however, reduced 10c to one patron, 25c to another and $1.00 to another. Everything is marked at the lowest price we can afford to sell for and that price is alike to all.

Lingerie Dresses Reduced

Our stock of beautiful white Lingerie Dresses is large, so large that we are compelled to offer great reductions to close them out. Come in and get our prices. You will not find better values at the prices anywhere.

One-Piece Gingham Dresses Reduced

We offer every Gingham Dress in stock at liberal reductions to close out immediately.
These gingham dresses have sold rapidly during the season, and what we have left are going to be sacrificed to quick sale.

Colored Lawn Petticoats $1 00 Worth $2 00

Just a small lot of colored lawn Embroidered Petticoats, pink and blue. Values $2.00 cut in half, now $1.00.

Ladies' Muslin Gowns 90c Worth to $1.50

Here is another lot for quick clearance.

Well made Muslin Gowns, trimmed with embroidery and lace, all styles. Values up to $1.50, marked down to 98c so that we shall not carry any over to next season.

Clearance of Shirtwaists 98c Worth Up to $1.50 and $1 75

This store has taken the lead in its Waist department, being first to introduce the newest creations, offering values unequalled elsewhere and in number of styles shown. Now as the season advances, we are ready for clearance. 98c is the price and it includes Chanticleer Waists, Middy Waists, Tailored Waists, Lingerie Waists, worth up as high as $1.75.

If you are buying waists be sure to see our stock. Every waist is boxed separately to keep it from being soiled. The finest creations of the market are here, and every one a great big Cash value that you will hardly be able to duplicate elsewhere.

STATE A. O. H. ARE TO MEET IN CITY

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY DELEGATES WILL BE PRESENT FOR MEETINGS.

HERE LAST OF THE MONTH

Come on the 23rd and 24th of the Present Month—City Will Welcome Visitors.

On the 23rd and 24th of the present month the state convention of the members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will hold their state convention in this city and it is expected fully a hundred and fifty delegates and many other visitors will be present for the sessions.

The delegates come from all parts of the state and will arrive on Monday the 22nd. The headquarters will be at the Myers Hotel and the Eastern hall and the hall used by the Spanish American War Veterans have been offered for the meeting places for the business sessions. The regular sessions will convene on Tuesday.

The members of the order and the ladies accompanying them will meet at the hall at 8:30 on Tuesday and will go in a body to St. Patrick's church where Miss Mass will be celebrated followed by a sermon. Special music has been arranged for this service and for both evenings of the regular session.

The address of welcome to the delegates and the guests will be given by Mayor Carlo at the hall immediately following the services at the church on Tuesday afternoon and the business session will immediately begin. Reports will be heard from all the divisions of the state and in the evening the Ladies' Auxiliary have prepared a special program which includes music and literary selections after which light refreshments will be served.

On Wednesday morning the business sessions will be concluded and in the afternoon will come the election of officers for the coming year. This will conclude the regular business of the convention which will close with a banquet for the visiting members and their ladies at the Assembly hall.

At night the order and their friends to the number of five hundred, will all down to an elaborate banquet in Assembly hall. Mayor Carlo will make an address and talks will be heard from Dean Kelly, Father James McGlinchey, State President J. P. Cullen, Ex-Astoria General J. L. O'Connor of Milwaukee, Prof. M. G. Rowan of Marquette University, Milwaukee, Judge Matthew Carpenter of Milwaukee and other delegates followed by a musical and literary program concluding with a dance.

Among the prominent men who will be present for the convention will be James J. Regan, National President of the order from St. Paul, Tom Ennis, the celebrated Irish bag piper of Chicago will also furnish music at the different entertainments and for a genuine Irish jig at the dance which follows the banquet. The music for the dance is to be furnished by the Knoff and Hatch orchestra.

It is expected that many of the business houses and private homes will be decorated for the occasion and a special committee of the order will have charge of this part of the entertainment for the visitors.

MRS. MINNIE CROUSE SEEKS DIVORCE FROM FRED CROUSE

Former Janesville Woman Files Bill For Legal Separation From Her Husband.

Through her lawyer, J. A. Smith of Rockford, Mrs. Minnie L. Crouse, formerly of this city, but now making her home in the Forest City, has filed a suit for divorce from Fred M. Crouse, on the grounds of drunkenness and non-support. The couple were married here July 6, 1888 and lived together until April 11, 1910. They resided here until five or six years ago when they moved to Rockford. The bill of divorce also charges the defendant with ill treatment and asks for an order for the payment of alimony. It is stated that the defendant is a solicitor for the Loyal Order of Moose.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Dr. Goodard, the Milwaukee Specialist, will be at the Myers Hotel, Janesville, Tuesday, August 16, and every four weeks thereafter. STRANGER CLAIMS COURT HOUSE PARK

Says Father Deeded Land Away Wrongfully and May Make Fight For the Land.

Will the county be forced to do down its title to the court house park and, in case the claimant to that valuable piece of real estate establishes his alleged rights, compelled to move the court house and seek a new home? This question may or may not be seriously troubling the county officials since the appearance of a stranger by the name of McCannan who asserts that he is the rightful owner of the land upon which the hall of justice stands. Recently he bobbed up in the office of the register of deeds, stated that he was the only real owner of the property in question, that he could prove it and requested that the county's title to the land be examined.

McCannan, which may or may not be his name, as he was very reticent with regard to his rights and identity, states that he was born on the spot where the court house now stands and that his father deeded the land to the county, which proceeding was entirely beyond his rights. The present court house was built in 1870 but before that, the old court house occupied almost the same ground and that deeded back to the fifth. McCannan does not appear to be over fifty. It may be that he was born there, but evidently not in a dwelling, and the dwelling stood before the old court house was built and McCannan has discovered the fountain of youth.

The county's title to the land dates back to the time when the government deeded it to the county and can be traced without difficulty to the present day, although the county ended a portion to the county for park purposes. No such name as McCannan appears in the records. According to appearance, someone must have unloaded a fake claim on the stranger or else he has trouble with his thinking apparatus.

SWAM TO SHORE IN BASKET

Desiring to Join His Sweetheart, a Sailor Risks Life in Jumping From Ship.

Love for an old sweetheart and desire to save her from a marriage arranged by her parents impelled Makinozono Inosuke of Seattle, Wash., a sailor on the steamer Inaba Maru, to risk his life in a daring attempt to escape from the vessel.

Waiting until the dark hours of the night Makinozono picked up a bamboo basket, and holding it over his head, leaped from the steamer. Both guards and ship's officers heard the splash and rushed to the spot. Electric flash lamps and the ship's searchlight shot their rays over the waters, but all that was discernible was a bamboo basket bobbing around in the bay. Apparently without any guidance the basket floated around the end of the grain elevator and disappeared. In the morning Makinozono was missed, and investigation developed the manner of his escape.

Sent among the passengers with a message from one of the ship's officers, Makinozono recognized the girl as an old sweetheart. It was then he carried out his plan of escape. The girl is held at the detention station.—New York Herald.

TWELVE DEAD IN A WRECK

PASSENGER TRAIN AND LIGHT
ENGINE COLLIDE NEAR IG-NATIO, CAL.

VICTIMS BURIED IN DEBRIS

Accident Occurs in Narrow Cut and Work of Recovering Dead and Wounded Was Difficult—Fifteen Persons Are Injured.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 9.—In a head-on collision between a passenger train and a terminal engine of the California and Northwestern railroad near Ignacio, Cal., 30 miles from here, twelve persons were killed and fifteen more or less seriously injured. Victims Buried in Debris.

The passenger train consisted of three coaches filled with Redmen on the way to the state convention at Santa Rosa. The passenger train came into collision with a terminal engine which had just left the siding at Ignacio with fearful impact, piling the cars on top of each other and burying the victims under the debris.

The wreck occurred at an unpopulated spot about two miles from Ignacio and it was fully an hour before assistance could be summoned. Many of the injured were pinned beneath the wreckage and were saved by the heroic work of those who escaped.

Help was summoned from the surrounding country and the work of dragging the helpless victims from the wreckage hastened as much as possible.

A wrecking train was sent to the scene from Sausalito and the dead and injured were taken to that place. Most of the victims were from California.

Trains Meet in Cut.

The passenger train was north-bound and was running through the cut at about twenty-five miles an hour. The freight train had passed Ignacio without receiving orders to take to the siding at that point to allow the passenger train to pass.

The engines met head on. The cut is narrow and after the crash the work of extricating the dead and wounded was done with great difficulty. The conductor, as soon as he had started the work of first aid to the injured, ran to Ignacio, where he got to a telephone key and flashed the news of the accident to San Rafael.

Feet Tired-- So Tired?

712 Makes Sick Feet Well No Matter
What Ails Them.

"712 acts at once and makes tired, aching, swollen feet remarkably fresh and sore proof. It's the sure remedy, you know, for everything that gets the matter with your feet. It's for sore feet and for weary, bad-smelling feet, and for corns, callouses and bunions, too. For years I have been troubled with sore and tender feet; suffered intense pain. There had been no rest for me for weeks. I bought a box of 712, which worked a perfect cure, as it has with a great many of my friends. I would not be without it. All I require is to be known to be universally used." A. F. Bruntz, Chicago.

"712 is not a powder. Powders and other foot remedies clog up the pores. 712 draws out all poisonous excretions which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does not irritate the skin. It keeps the feet cool and dry. You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain, and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person.

"712 is for sale at all druggists, 25 cents per box, or it will be sent you direct. It can be had from Walter Lather, Judge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

The Girl and the Bill

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—At the expense of a solid but silent Orme saves from arrest a girl in a black touring car who has caused a traffic jam on Main street. He buys a new bill for her in exchange of a five dollar bill with "Remember person you pay this to" written on it. A second time he helps the girl in the bill. He is a new friend to Tom and Jessie Wallingham they have mutual friends, but gets no further hint of her identity. He discovers another incident on the marked bill, which is a futile attempt to decipher it, he copies and places the copy in a drawer.

CHAPTER II.—Senator Portol, South American, calls and claims the marked bill. Orme refuses to give it up. Portol attacks Orme, is overpowered and falls in Senator Alcantara's arms. Alcantara tries diplomacy to get the bill. Orme is suspicious and discharges them with a promise to keep the bill until ten tomorrow morning. The office clerk tells Orme that a Japanese has called for him, but goes away without leaving name or message.

CHAPTER III.—Orme goes for an evening walk and in Lincoln park rescues Alcantara from two Japanese assassins. Alcantara signs a bill of diplomacy, but fails to get the marked bill. On his return to the Pere Marquette Orme is dragged by two Japanese into the building. He is taken to the courtyard, the Japanese attempt to kill him and a forced exchange of the marked bill for another is made. The Japanese are released. He notes one of them has a scarred forehead.

CHAPTER IV.—In the Pere Marquette reception room he finds the girl of the car waiting for him. Orme looks at the bill. Orme tells his story. She recognizes the Japanese with the scar as Naku, her father's butler. The second description on the bill is of her friend in disguise. He is a Japanese, Orme finds in Alcantara's pocket a folded slip of paper. At the girl's request he takes her and the car to the home of her friend in Evanston. She is still just "Orme."

CHAPTER V.—Orme goes back to the university grounds and finds out from Portol, who is a Japanese, that the girl is a Japanese. Orme goes to the Japanese house and finds a motor boat on the lake and Orme suggests that Alcantara's assistant is "Orme." Orme goes to the boat and finds a Japanese. CHAPTER X.

"Find the American."

An Orme led the table cover fall back to its normal position and turned to get himself into a comfortable attitude. His hand touched something soft and yielding. For a moment he was startled, but the sound of a throaty purr and the realization that his hand was resting on fur soon told him that his companion in hiding was a cat.

He wondered whether the Japanese liked cats. From what little he knew of Japanese character it did not seem to him consistent that they should care for animals. Yet here was a peaceful tabby.

In order to accommodate himself to his close quarters, Orme had to double his legs back, resting on his thigh and supporting the upper part of his body with one hand. The cat settled down against his knee.

The light filtered redly through the table cover. To his satisfaction he found a small hole, evidently a burn made by some careless smoker. Through this aperture he could look out. His range of vision included the greater part of the room, excepting the side on which the table stood. He could see the window and several chairs, as well as the door into the adjoining room, but the door into the hall was out of view, at his right.

While he was looking about, a man came from the next room. Doubtless it was Arima; at least Orme recognized the Japanese who had overcome him in the porter's office at the Pere Marquette the night before. He stepped into the room with a little smile on his brown face. Sensing himself in a chair, he fixed his heels in the rungs and clasped his hands about his knees. He was waiting.

The black eyes rested on the table. To Orme they seemed to be boring through the cover that concealed him, and he hardly dared to breathe, but the Asiatic appeared to observe nothing unusual. Orme wondered at the unfathomable intelligence of those eyes. He had often said of the Chinese and Japanese that he did not trust them for the reason that a Caucasian could never tell what they were thinking about. The racial difference in thought processes he found disconcerting.

A bell rung. Arima went to the door out of view, and opened it. Orme could hear persons mounting the stairs, and presently the voice of Arima said, "Come in," and the visitors entered the room.

Pausing near the door for a moment, they exchanged a few whispered senences. Then one of them walked over toward the window. Orme repressed an exclamation, for the figure that came into view was the figure of Portol—dapper, assertive.

He was dressed as on the night before, and his precious high hat was hugged close to his shoulder.

His eyes roved with an exaggerated assumption of important cunning. Presently he threw over his shoulder a rapid sentence in a foreign tongue. It sounded like Spanish, and Orme inferred that it was a dialect of Portuguese.

The answer came from an oily tongue; the voice was Alcantara's.

What were the South Americans doing here? It was only a few hours since the Japanese had set on Alcantara, yet here he was in a strong-hold of the enemy—and expected! Had the astute diplomat fallen into a trap?

Arima was standing, not far from Portol, his face was expressionless. Looking from Alcantara to Portol and back again, he said in English: "The most honorable gentleman will soon be here."

"That is right," said Alcantara suavely. "Mention no names."

Arima nodded slightly. The silence grew intense. Orme was relieved when it was broken by another ring of the bell and Arima slipped to the door. Alcantara moved over beside Portol and whispered a few words, scarcely moving his lips. His face looked yellow by daylight, and the eyes behind the gold spectacles were heavily-lidded and almost closed. Orme inferred that the night had been sleepless for Alcantara.

These observations were interrupted by the entrance of the newcomer. He paused at the threshold, evidently to salute, for Portol and Alcantara bowed low. Then quick steps crossed the floor and into view came a nervous but assured-looking little figure—a Japanese, but undoubtedly a man of great dignity. His manner of sharp authority would be hard to dispute, for it was supported by a personality that seemed to be stronger than Alcantara's. Who he was Orme could not guess, but that he was somebody of importance it was easy to see.

The stranger bowed again and addressed himself to Alcantara. The conversation was carried on in French. "It is well that you communicated with me, sir," he said, "we were working at cross-purposes when, in reality, our interests were identical."

Alcantara bowed. "I came to that conclusion late last night," he said. "I do not deny that it would have pleased me to carry the affair through by myself."

"Yes, your position would then have been stronger." The Japanese smiled faintly.

"But," continued Alcantara, with a slight grimace, "the activity of your men made that impossible. I have no hesitations such as yours." He shot an ugly gleam at Portol, whose sudden assumption of fearlessness humiliated him in strange contrast to his usual self-assurance.

"As we hold the documents"—the Japanese spoke with great distinctness—"you will necessarily admit our advantage. That means, you will understand, a smaller commission on the next contract."

Alcantara twisted his face into the semblance of a smile. "Not too small, or we cannot undertake the work," he said.

"No, not too small," the stranger agreed calmly. "But smaller than the last. You must not forget that there are others who would gladly do the same work."

"Yes, but at least they cannot get the terms we got."

"Possibly. That is a matter still to be determined. Meanwhile we have assumed that our interests in this document are identical. Let us test it."

"One word first," said Alcantara. "I take it that, if our interests are sympathetic with yours, we may count on your protection?"

"Most assuredly."

"Then—?"

"Then we shall see. My fairness is clear in that I give you a sight of the document with myself. I might have denied all knowledge of it."

Alcantara smiled as if to say: "I already know so much that you could not risk that."

The stranger turned, to Arima and said something in Japanese. Arima replied, and the stranger explained to Alcantara: "I asked about my man Naku. The American struck him on the head last night and injured him. But he is recovering. He is troublesome—that American."

Orme started. His head bumped against the table.

"What's that?" exclaimed Portol, advancing. "There's something under that table!" He stooped to lift the cover.

"A cat," said Portol, drawing back. Arima explained in English: "It belongs to lady upstairs. Comes down for escape. Shoot! Shoot!" He clapped his hands and the animal bounded to the window-sill and disappeared up the linen steps.

"And now," began the stranger, "shall we examine the documents?" "One moment," said Alcantara. "I should first like a clear understanding with you—some words in private." He moved to a corner, and there the

It Now Remained to Find Something to Take the Place of the Abstracted Documents.

stranger joined him. They talked in an undertone for several minutes. Alcantara gestured volubly, the stranger nodding now and then, and interjecting a few brief words.

What was going on was more than ever a mystery to Orme. The stranger's reference to "the next contract" strengthened the surmise that the documents in the envelope were connected with a South American trade concession. Alcantara had plainly concluded that his interests and those of the Japanese were identical. He must have communicated with the strange Japanese the first thing in the morning. That would account for his failure to call at the Pere Marquette at ten o'clock. Learning that the bill had been taken from Orme, and that the coveted documents were in the possession of the Japanese, he had no object in keeping his appointment. As for Portol, he had become a figure of minor importance.

But Orme did not let these questions long engage him, for he had made a discovery. Where his head bumped against the table, the board above him—solid, as he had supposed—rattled strangely. At the moment he could not investigate, but as soon as the cat had satisfied the suspicions of Portol, and Alcantara and the stranger had retired to their corner, he twisted his head back and examined the wood above him.

The table had a drawer. From the room outside this drawer was concealed by the cloth cover, and Orme had not suspected its existence.

Now, the table was cheaply made. The drawer was shallow and narrow, and it was held in position, under the table, by an open framework of wood. When it was pushed in, it was stopped at the right place by two clamps; there was no solid strip to prevent its being pushed in too far.

Orme put his hand to the back of the drawer. There was a space between it and the table-top.

Cautiously he pushed his hand through the opening. His fingers touched a flat object—a pad of paper, or—the thought made his heart beat—a large, thick envelope. Could Arima have used the drawer as a hiding place?

Slowly he got the edge of the object between his first and second fingers and drew it a little way toward the back of the drawer. A moment later he had it under his eyes.

Yes, it was a long envelope of heavy linen, and there were bulky papers within. The gummy flap was toward him. He was interested to note that, important though the documents seemed to be, the envelope was not sealed with wax.

TINY BABY HAD DREADFUL ECZEMA

On Hands, Face, Nose and Mouth.
Hard Crust Formed and Cracked Open. Blood Ran. Itched Frightfully. Mitts on Hands. No Rest.

Got Cuticura. In 3 Days Relief. In a Week Cured Without a Mark.

"I have a little baby almost a year old. When it was two months old it got eczema on top of both her hands, on her face and inside her nose and mouth. She refused to drink, and one of her eyes almost closed up. A hard crust formed and would crack open and the blood ran out. It itched so frightfully that the poor little girl could not rest. She had to keep her hands on her face and her mother was forced to sit in a rocking chair with the baby in her arms and neck. We had a very good doctor and he did all that he could, but the results were not what we had looked for."

"We had read of the Cuticura remedy so we went to the drug store and got some Cuticura soap and Cuticura ointment. We used them just as directed and in three days the crust began to come off. In a week there was no more scab and now the baby is healthy and out of a mark almost as quickly in her cradle and her parents in their bed, with no more sleepless nights because of the baby's suffering. Cuticura seems a wonderful remedy for this disease and any one having eczema should not delay in getting it. Write to J. C. Fogel, R. F. D. 1, Bath, Me., for a free trial."

Putter Bros. & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston. 25-cent trial box, 25-cent Cuticura book, containing invaluable advice on the Treatment of Skin Diseases.

Train Bearing Knights Templar De-

UHLAN TROTS A MILE IN 2:01.

Billings' Horse Makes Remarkable Performance at Cleveland Track.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 9.—Uhlman, the beautiful black son of Hingon, proved himself the peer of any trotter which has dared time without artificial aid. In the opening of the second grand circuit half-harness racing meeting at the North Randall track, driven to wagon by his owner, C. K. G. Billings, he turned the mile in 2:01, clipping 1/4 seconds from his own record to wagon, already the record for trotting geldings, knocked a quarter second from the track record, and equaled the time of any trotter ever sent against time without the aid of a wind-shield.

E. C. FIELD MAY SUCCEED RAWN.

Monon's Vice-President Reported Slated for Advancement.

Cincinnati, Aug. 9.—From a high source it is learned that, in all probability, E. C. Field, vice-president and collector of the Monon railroad, will succeed the late Ira G. Rawn, who met a mysterious death in his Chicago home a few weeks ago.

Friends of Mr. Field are discussing his qualifications for the position and it is the general consensus of opinion that he is the logical man for the place.

CARS STONED IN COLUMBUS.

Effort to Operate Street Railway Without Soldiers Partial Failure.

Columbus, O., Aug. 9.—The first effort to run Columbus street cars without military protection resulted in partial failure. The stoning of cars began early last evening, and two hours later the company began ordering cars into the barns. All the troops except the Third regiment left the city during the day. A battalion of the Third was kept in the statehouse yard last night.

AMERICAN YACHT WINS TROPHY.

Schooner Westward Takes Gold Cup
in International Race.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Aug. 9.—The American schooner Westward, owned by A. C. Cochran of New York, easily won the race for the International gold cup sailed off Ryde. Her nearest competitor, the Germana, owned by Lieut. Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, was five miles astern when the winner crossed the finish line. Emperor William's yacht Meteor, the Cleely and the Susan also completed.

CAIRO COURT-MARTIAL CALLED.

Captain W. H. Greaney to Answer
Riot Charge Wednesday.

Cairo, Ill., Aug. 9.—Capt. W. H. Greaney of Company K, Illinois National Guard, has been notified that a court of inquiry will be held in Cairo, August 10, to inquire into his alleged failure to aid Sheriff Nellis promptly the night of February 17 last, when the county jail was attacked.

The court will consist of Col. Frank S. Wood, Fifth Infantry; Lieut. Col. James Ransay, division major; E. P. Clayton, Fourth Infantry, and Captain and Assistant Surgeon George A. Clotfelter, Fifth Infantry.

Additional charges are that members of Company K broke up the furniture in the sheriff's office and that the company pay roll was padded.

BRADFORD DESCENDANT SUICIDE

Refused by Girl, Kin of First Plymouth Governor Kills Himself.

South Framingham, Mass., Aug. 9.—With a copy of Byron's poem beside him, Gamaliel Bradford III., twenty-three years old, of Wellesley Hills, direct descendant of William Bradford, first governor of the Plymouth colony, and a member of the graduating class of 1910 at Harvard, shot and killed himself at a local hotel, because the girl he loved and who is engaged to another, had refused him.

Mad Left Him.
Jack—I hear you had some money left you.

Tom—Yes; it left me quite a while ago.

Getting the Habit.
"Why do you keep the windows up? The curtains are blowing all the time," he stormed. "They may have caught the habit," she said, without telling him whom they caught it.—Boston Record.

Spiritual the Real.
Yes, it is true that there are moments when the flesh is nothing to me, when I feel to be the vision; God and the spiritual, the only real and true. Depend upon it the spiritual is the real.—Tennyson.

Spider-Web Suits.

Now that the hot weather is with us again it might pay some enthusiastic tradesman to revive the manufacture of costumes from spiders' webs, which at one time served to make a cool and attractive fabric. The first person to use the web in this way was a Montpelier merchant named Don, Louis XIV. himself designed to appear in a spider-web suit, with gloves and stockings of the same material, and several of his court followed his example. The fashion was at its height from 1709 to 1711. But the spiders appear to have struck work, or perhaps they were swept down by conscientious housemaids. Anyhow, you would hardly get a spider suit today.

M'MURRAY FIRM IS HIT HARD

GOVERNOR'S SON TESTIFIES HE WAS OFFERED SHARE IN FEES.

MORE OF $3,000,000 SCHEME

Alleged Promoter of Plan to Sell $30,000,000 Worth of Land Gays Indians Sought His Aid Because Government Was Slow.

McAlester, Okla., Aug. 9.—The feature of the hearing here before the special congressional committee which is inquiring into the McMurray contract with the Chickasaw and Choctaw Indians and also the charges of bribery made by Senator Gore, was the testimony given by D. C. McMurray, son of Governor McMurray, when he was recalled to the witness stand. The witness testified that he had an agreement with the firm of Mansfield, McMurray & Cornish that he was to have one-fourth of the fees they received and that the share thereof coming to him was $187,500. McMurray said this occurred two years before McMurray offered him $25,000 to not oppose the approval of the contracts.

W. T. Hollman, a Choctaw Indian, testified he had been employed by J. F. McMurray, holder of the contracts, to go out among the Oklahoma Indians and induce them to sign the documents. At the same time, Hollman related, he was paid "a dollar a head" for securing contracts appointing McMurray to act in tax cases. In this way McMurray procured 10,000 contracts to sell land.

"I would have given 25 per cent to McMurray," said Hollman, "if he could have gotten us the money quickly. He said he believed some of the Indians would be willing to give McMurray 75 per cent."

Indians Were Impatient.
In a statement to the committee and without going on the stand, McMurray declared that the contracts came to him originally against his desire. He said the Indians at a "war council" had demonstrated their impatience at the government's alleged slowness in the selling of the land and had called upon him to take the job at 10 per cent, which he did with reluctance. McMurray will go on the stand later.

Questioned further, Hollman testified it was the belief of the Indians that their property was worth from $20,000,000 to $40,000,000, and the understanding was McMurray was to get 10 per cent of this.

"Is it the belief of the Indians that McMurray had some power at Washington by which he would be able to get more quickly than if you left it to the government?" asked Representative E. W. Saunders of Virginia.

"We didn't know how he was going to do it, but he thought he knew how," was the answer.
"Did you think McMurray was a magician?"
"We thought he knew how to do it." Have to Pay Somebody.

"Is it actually the belief among the Indians that they have to pay somebody else to get what the government has said rightfully belongs to them?"

"That has become the belief, that they have to give up a good portion of what they get in attorneys' fees."

TEMPLARS MARCH

to La Salle street thence north to the new country building where the ranks were broken and the parade disbanded. The decorations all along the line of march were rich and beautiful and the gorgeous scenes of the knightly pageant will live long in the memory of the many thousands who had the opportunity to witness this, the most magnificent spectacle seen in the West for many years.

Park Superintendents Convene.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 9.—A meeting of the executive committee and a business session opened the annual convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents this morning.

President William S. Manning of Baltimore was in the chair and the members, hurrying through routine affairs, turned to pleasure, and with the ladies took a long automobile trip in and about the city. Tonight papers will be read in Reservoir park, and tomorrow the convention will close, after which the whole crowd will make an excursion to Gettysburg battlefield.

Mrs. W. W. Hammond, of Edgerton, Wis., Wins the Prize, $5.00 in Trade

"You know that procrastination may cost you the opportunity to get one." That was the sentence from which the ten words were omitted.

How the Prize Was Won

There were 13 answers all representing the thought of the above sentence, no one of them being near enough to be entitled to the prize. 13 uniform slips of paper were numbered and the letters were numbered to correspond. These numbers were placed "In the old gray bonnet" and a drawing was made by a representative of The Gazette, number "4" being the lucky number. This happened to be Mrs. Hammond's letter and she was awarded the prize for this answer: "You know they will not last long at the prices quoted here."

At This Season of the Year Summer Wash Dresses
